TRON (TRX)

Tron is a blockchain-based decentralized platform that aims to build a free, global digital content entertainment system with distributed storage technology, and allows easy and cost-effective sharing of digital content.

Tron was founded in September 2017 by a Singapore based non-profit organization called the Tron Foundation. It is headed by CEO Justin Sun and has a dedicated in-house development team that includes renowned technology stalwarts. This article explores the Tron network, its workings, and its crypto currency Tronix (TRX).

BLOCKCHAIN

EOS is a blockchain-based, decentralized system infrastructure that enables the development, hosting, and execution of commercial-scale decentralized applications (dApps) on its platform. No official full form exists for EOS, and the creators have decided not to formally define it themselves.

KEY OF BLOCK CHAIN EOS:-

- EOS is a blockchain decentralized system infrastructure that enables the development of decentralized applications (dApps).
- EOS supports secure access and authentication, permissioning, data hosting, usage management, and communication between the dApps and the Internet.
- The EOS ecosystem has two key elements: the EOS.IO and the EOS tokens.
- The EOS.IO is the system architecture, and the EOS token is the network's crypto currency.
- EOS has some potential, but Ethereum is its main competitor and is currently more popular.

WHAT ARE SMART CONTRACTS?

Smart contracts are simply programs stored on a blockchain that run when predetermined conditions are met. They typically are used to automate the execution of an agreement so that all participants can be immediately certain of the outcome, without any intermediary's involvement or time loss. They can also automate a workflow, triggering the next action when conditions are met.

SMART CONTRACT ADVANTAGES

Cost efficiency: - Smart contracts promise to automate business processes that span organizational boundaries. This can eliminate many operational expenses and save resources, including the personnel needed to monitor the progress of a complex process that executes in response to conditions that span companies.

Processing speed: - Smart contracts can improve the processing speed of business processes that run across multiple enterprises.

Autonomy: - Smart contracts are performed automatically by the network and reduce the need for a third party to manage transactions between businesses.

Reliability: - Smart contracts can also take advantage of blockchain ledgers and other distributed ledger technologies to maintain a verifiable record of all activity related to execution of complex processes and that cannot be changed after the fact. It also supports automated transactions that remove the potential for human error and ensure accuracy in executing the contracts.
